The MKC Invest Tracking Tomorrow portfolio 10 aims to provide very long-term capital growth from a diversified portfolio of collective investments. The portfolio will be managed such that its overall level of investment risk will be suitable for, and in line with the expectations of, an investor at level 10 on the MKC "Baseline" scale of investment risk. The portfolio aims to outperform (net of any investment related costs but not necessarily net of any costs relating to advice or custody) this strategic asset allocation over the course of at least two full market cycles through the adoption of a long-term tactical asset allocation derived from credible research and projections about future global stock market capitalisations. The underlying collective investments will be index tracking funds except in exceptional circumstances where suitable index tracking funds cannot be purchased. The selection of index-tracking collectives will be unconstrained to any particular firm (s).

Market Overview:

Markets were extremely volatile during April as President Trump unveiled a series of tariffs that proved far more punitive than anticipated. Although there was a partial recovery when the higher 'reciprocal' tariffs were paused for 90 days, uncertainty over which countries would be affected—and to what extent—weighed heavily on investor sentiment.

In times of market stress, investors typically seek refuge in safe-haven assets such as the US dollar, US bonds, and gold. While the gold price rose to record levels during the month, the US dollar weakened appreciably, and US bond yields increased.

The potential threat to the dollar's status as the world's reserve currency is widely believed to have prompted a softening in rhetoric later in the month. This, in turn, led to a rebound in those areas of the equity market that had suffered the sharpest losses.

On the final day of the month, data showed that the US economy contracted in Q1—the first decline since 2022. Although equity markets shrugged off the news and continued to climb, the coming months will reveal whether this was a one-off or an early signal of mounting recessionary pressure.

Portfolio performance has been calculated using Morningstar Direct and is believed accurate based on the standard pricing of any underlying investment funds held in the portfolio. In some cases, clients may benefit from additional discounts to those same funds on their chosen custody platform. This will cause differences between actual performance and the performance calculated by Morningstar. We expect in all cases that these differences, where present, will be to investors' advantage.
